DOCTORS TIP: You are the expert.

As the older person's caregiver, you are an expert when it comes to that person. Therefore, you are in the best position to find meaning in the behavior. Sometimes people act strangely because they can't do what they are expected to do. This can happen when there is too much or too little stimulation from noise, people, or competing demands. Sometimes these behaviors are caused by medical problems. It is therefore important to discuss these behaviors with the doctor or nurse. However, sometimes these behaviors can be the first or only sign of a physical illness, especially infection. Here is an example: Loretta's mother, who has Alzheimer's disease, keeps going into the bathroom every 15 minutes but does not always pass urine. Loretta assumes that her mother "forgets" why she is in the bathroom, but reports the behavior to her doctor anyway. A urine test reveals a bladder infection. After an antibiotic treatment, the behavior is improved.

Medical Power of Attorney or HealthCare Surrogate

What is the difference?

The main difference between a medical power of attorney and a healthcare surrogate is that you appoint a medical power of attorney representative to make healthcare decisions for you when you become unable to make them for yourself. You can specify what healthcare decisions your medical power of attorney can make.

A healthcare surrogate, on the other hand, is someone who is appointed to make healthcare decisions for you when you become unable to make them for yourself. You have no say in who becomes your healthcare surrogate. You can avoid having a healthcare surrogate appointed if you have appointed a medical power of attorney representative and that representative is still willing and able to serve. The type of decisions that may be made by a health care surrogate is any decision to give, withhold or withdraw informed consent to any type of health care, including but not limited to, medical and surgical treatments, life-prolonging interventions, psychiatric treatment, nursing care, hospitalization, treatment in a nursing home, home health care and organ donation. The physician who is attending to you or the advance practice nurse working with the physician who is attending you will select the person to serve as your healthcare surrogate.

"You have no say who becomes your health-care surrogate."

Next issue: Rules your health care surrogate must follow.
